It's a story of David versus Goliath this weekend for the roller derby world at the fifth annual Ivy King Cup Championship.

Playing the part of Goliath are Hell's Belles, the reigning Windy City Rollers champions. And as David are the Manic Attackers, underdogs and first-time finalists.

Though Hell's Belles went undefeated last year, both teams this year have a 4-2 record, so it's anybody's game. Both will be relentless to win the cup and the bragging rights that come with it.

As a pre-bout activity, an auction will help raise money for Tahirah "Tequila Mockingbird" Johnson, a former league skater who suffered a spinal cord injury two years ago. The bout's proceeds will go to Porchlight Counseling Services, which helps college sexual assault survivors.

With a pavilion that can hold 10,000, thousands are expected to show up. Doors open at 5 p.m., and the bout starts at 6 p.m. You can buy tickets in advance or at the door, and prices range from $10 to $40, depending on age.

serpico-collection.com

Check it out if you ... always want second opinions from your girlfriends when you shop, love the idea of a sale that's just for you, think a chic store is the perfect place to throw a party.

The details: The women's clothing boutique hosts free shopping parties for groups of eight or more between 6 and 9 p.m. daily. The store will send out electronic invitations and provide white wine (reds are a no-go in order to protect the clothes), coffee, tea and snacks ranging from cupcakes to cheese and crackers. You also can bring your own food and drinks. The party organizer gets 20 percent off full-price purchases and 10 percent off sale items, and guests get 10 percent off full-price items that night. While you shop, you can get one-on-one style consultations from staff, and Serpico also can bring in makeup artists and nail technicians. Parties must be booked two weeks in advance.

Over the line

On Thursday, RedEye looked into a few beloved Chicago activities to determine what is—and isn't—legal. Barbecuing on a porch, deck or balcony? Totally legal. Hanging out at the beach at midnight? Not so much.

Since that story was so fun, we've rounded up some of the week's news in a similar fashion. Here for your consideration: A few newsmakers who should be outlawed.

NUCCIO DINUZZO/TRIBUNE

Game postponements

The Crosstown Classic at Wrigley Field got rained out Tuesday, the first cancellation in 13 years of the series between the Cubs and the White Sox, according to mlb.com. But hey, at least it wasn't the most scandalous thing to happen in baseball this week, right?

People who stand in front of 'L' doors

In Tuesday's installment of "Going Public," a reader wrote in to say "get out of the way" to people who block the doors on our love-to-hate-it transit system.

Pesky insects

After President Obama swatted a fly Tuesday during a White House interview, PETA issued a statement to The Associated Press saying he should have been more compassionate toward even the "smallest and least sympathetic animals." Whether you agreed or rolled your eyes at this, you gotta admit flies are annoying.

Scheduling conflicts

Lollapalooza released its schedule on Wednesday, and once again music fans will have to make tough choices when the event comes to Grant Park from Aug. 7-9. Neko Case vs. Vampire Weekend (both playing at 4:30 p.m. Sunday)? What's a hipster to do? And don't get us started about Lou Reed vs. Snoop Dogg (6:30 p.m. Sunday). Pitchfork released its schedule Friday.

NOTABLE/QUOTABLE

NOTABLE

Mayor Daley told the Tribune on Thursday that Chicago taxpayers are on the Olympic hook for only the $500 million guaranteed by the City Council if the city gets the 2016 Olympics. But his assertion is at odds with language in a host city contract the mayor plans to sign, obligating the city to full financial responsibility for a Chicago 2016 Summer Games, according to the Tribune.

QUOTABLE

"If everyone goes bankrupt in the world, I don't know what happens. The one thing I know is it is only $500 million to Chicago taxpayers."

—MAYOR DALEY to the Tribune on Thursday

BEHOLD! THE ALMIGHTY CUPCAKE

THE INCREDIBLE, EDIBLE CONFECTION JUST WON'T GO AWAY

Los Angeles Times

Think cupcakes are, like, so 2004? Think again.

Like a Hollywood starlet, they have been exposed every which way—high-end and low, fancy and down-home. But unlike those pretty young things, the cupcake's time in the sun goes on and on.

And in Chicago and elsewhere across the country, these little paper-clad stars just keep soaking in the love.

In fact, their popularity may even outlast you know who, who helped set off this craze: Sarah Jessica Parker, whose "Sex and the City" character—Carrie Bradshaw—was famously seen wearing knee socks and devouring a pink-frosted cupcake outside Manhattan's Magnolia Bakery back in the day.

"I think they remind you of childhood," said John Nicolaides, a self-professed chief egg cracker at Molly's Cupcakes who co-owns the Lincoln Park shop with his brother. The store is named after Nicolaides' 3rd-grade teacher, and its bakers follow the same recipe Miss Molly used to bake cupcakes for her students' birthdays.

Nicolaides, 37, says about 1,500 cupcakes make their way from the Molly's ovens to customers' stomachs each day. Yet with some cupcakes costing up to $4.95 a pop, what's the draw—especially in this economy?

"It's just something that appeals to people," said Aileen O'Sullivan, 21, a cupcake waitress at Molly's. "They look pretty. They taste good. You can give them as presents."

And don't forget the celebrity angle.

Even Martha Stewart is chiming in with some—surprise, surprise—labor-intensive decoration and presentation ideas in her

Caitlin McCahill, 25, is an assistant manager at the Twisted Sister bakery in Old Town. McCahill has been working at the bakery for about a year and says her favorite flavor of cupcake is red velvet. ELIZABETH MYERS/REDEYE book "Martha Stewart's Cupcakes," published this month.

Her ideas include graduation cupcakes topped with cookies made to look like diplomas (tied with blue sour candy ribbons), cupcakes covered in piped grass icing with little marzipan ladybugs, and cupcakes frosted to look like little chicks.

"They're an icon of the American bakery. People want to find something real and natural and true," says Elfie Weis, a Frenchwoman who has been so entranced with cupcakes that she's considering opening a Paris branch of her Mar Vista, Calif., shop, Hotcakes Bakes.

At Swirlz Cupcakes in Lincoln Park, business has always been consistent, said owner Pam Rose. While there doesn't seem to be a "cupcake season," certain holidays are more popular for the dessert, she said.

"Valentine's and Mother's Days—those are the best two days of the year," Rose, 52, said.

While the shop has debuted more than 400 flavors, customers have demonstrated their clear favorites.

"People come back for the red velvet cupcake," she said. "Vegan cupcakes are also spectacular. They sell it out every day."

Rose said the store can sell anywhere between 200-1,500 cupcakes any day of the week. And the economy hasn't yet discouraged fans of the confections.

"We have a following of customers," she said. In fact, the turbulent economy has "quite the opposite" effect, she says.

"In a recession, people will treat themselves to small luxuries."

And they'll treat themselves to small indulgences as well, according to at least one trade group.

REFILL IT

Your empty pasta bowl

'Hood: Little Tuscany

Wine! Pasta! Festival-inspired jubilation! What more could you ask for from a summertime street fest? Not much, if you ask anyone who's ever attended Festa Pasta Vino (24th Street and Oakley Avenue, 847-795-1800). This cozy nook of a festival wraps up all the ingredients of a great Italian party (pasta and wine, of course), mixes in live tunes and tops it all off with a heaping helping of Italian desserts (no word yet on the revival of the cannoli-eating contest, but we've got our fingers crossed). Load up your plate, top off that glass and don't miss performances by Chicago's Rat Pack (5:30 p.m. Saturday) and the "Jersey Boys" cast (6 p.m. Sunday).

Lisa Lampanelli

'Hood: Loop

The Queen of Mean—and notorious purveyor of belted A-line dresses—descends on the Chicago Theatre (175 N. State St. 312-462-6300) for two shows Saturday as part of TBS' star-studded "A Very Funny Festival: Just For Laughs." If you've heard of Lisa Lampanelli but don't know her shtick, buckle up and prepare for a rocky road of controversial hilarity. (You might want to queue up her roast of Flavor Flav online to get yourself in the mood.) Can't handle the sarcasm? There's plenty more comedy where she came from. We suggest hitting up Danny Bhooy and Jim Breuer's "Double Threat" (7 p.m. Sat.) at Lakeshore Theater (3175 N. Broadway). For the full "Just For Laughs" schedule, see metromix.com.

Randolph Street eats

'Hood: West Loop

Celebrate this 'hood's continual culinary rise with eats from the restaurants that gave the area its street cred at the 12th annual Taste of Randolph Street (Randolph and Peoria Streets, 312-458-9401). Sample food from

De Cero (814 W. Randolph St.), Veerasway (844 W. Randolph St.), Kenny Williams' Market (1113 W. Randolph St.) and oodles of other tasty spots while listening to a stellar lineup of bands, including—wait for it—the Hold Steady at 8 p.m. Sunday. For an even more food-focused edge, hang out by the Culinary Pavilion for cooking demos by chefs such as Alhambra Palace's Kher Albourini (6:30 p.m. Saturday) and Red Light's Jackie Shen (3:30 p.m. Sunday).

Ultimate Athlete

'Hood: Lincoln Park

Lake Michigan might not have a "muscle beach," per se, but on Saturday, North Avenue Beach (1600 N. Lake Shore Drive) gets pretty close. Watch buff guys and gals vie for the title of Ultimate Athlete during Men's magazine's second annual test of strength, speed and strategy. Watch participants compete for $2,500 in five skills challenges, including a home run derby, fastest-tennis-serve battle and an obstacle course. Sip a beachside pint of beer from the sidelines or join in the fun during baggo and beach volleyball tournaments.

State breakfast

By M. Kathleen Pratt

The scene: Hotel breakfast. Words that once put fear in the hearts of discerning diners. But at some point, connotations of inflated prices and sub-par execution of perfunctory dishes like eggs Benedict and blueberry pancakes faded. These days, there are plenty of hotel spots that serve something more than three-cheese omelets and yogurt parfaits. State and Lake, the new restaurant inside Loop boutique hotel The Wit, aspires to be among them.

With lots of swanky leather seating, cork floors and tabletops, and a separate street entrance in addition to the standard off-lobby entry, the dining room doesn't have a typical hotel look. But it does have an eerily polished hotel air, which is only exacerbated by service that feels painfully rehearsed.

If you're looking for a convenient place to meet for a morning meal in the Loop, it's hard to think of a better place than the easy-to-find, "L"-accessible intersection of State and Lake.

Got out-of-towners coming in this summer? When they ask where to meet for breakfast in the city, point them here.

The cuisine: Chef Bradley Manchester, who oversees all of State and Lake's menus as well as room service and banquet facilities for The Wit, admirably balances necessary convention and welcome innovation. There are certainly nods to trained hotel guests—witness the steel-cut oats ($6), the fruit parfait ($9) and the build-your-own omelet ($14). But there also are more creative dishes that make State and Lake worth a stop even if you're not entertaining out-of-towners or holding an early-morning meeting.

A short rib omelet ($13) reinvents a dish from the dinner menu, putting melt-in-your-mouth, red and white wine-braised short ribs into a thick omelet with melty cambozola cheese and shiitakes. Pecan- and banana-topped Guinness pancakes ($13) are dense and ever-so-slightly malty with crisp brown edges, thanks to the hit of Irish stout in the batter. And then there are the State and Lake Bennies ($14), two country biscuits topped with poached eggs, braised pork shoulder and smoked garlic hollandaise.

State and Lake chef

Of course, if you seek the familiar safety of eggs Benedict ($13), State and Lake's got you covered there too.

TV Eli Stone

9 p.m. Saturday, ABC

Like "Pushing Daisies," "Eli Stone" dared to be different on network TV. Now it's canceled, but thankfully viewers get to see the three unaired episodes on consecutive Saturdays. Jonny Lee Miller (below) plays Eli, a heartless corporate lawyer who starts seeing visions of singing co-workers—and George Michael—that lead him to flip sides and fight his own firm's wealthy clients in court. "Eli Stone" was far from flawless TV, but I loved every odd, musical minute of it.

SONG Battlefield

Jordin Sparks

With her new single, Jordin Sparks and her collaborators, including producer Ryan Tedder, seem bent on testing out the so-good-she-could-sing-the-phone-book meme. She sounds great on the song, not just on the passable verses, but also on the ridiculous chorus of "Why does love always feel like a battlefield? A battlefield? A battlefield?" and even the crazier bridge "You better go and get your armor!" So is it a good song? Um, the phone book would've sounded better.

GAME Ghostbusters: The Video Game

Xbox 360, PlayStation 3 and Wii

"Ghostbusters" is meant to feel like a movie, and it's very linear. If you're hoping to spend time exploring the Big Apple, you're out of luck. The animation, during both gameplay and storytelling sequences, is largely solid, although there are occasional lip-synching glitches. The game doesn't capture the magic of the original film. But unlike most movie tie-ins, it feels like an affectionate tribute rather than a cynical attempt to cash in. LOU KESTEN, AP

By Jim Carnes

It seems as if every new DVD release this week came with the promotional tagline: Just in time for Father's Day.

I'm not sure that "Lost: The Complete First and Second Seasons"—beautiful as it is on Blu-ray and packed with high-definition extras—is the kind of thing I want to give my 80-year-old dad, though.

For me, I'm glad to have the beginning episodes all together (maybe I'll make sense of it this time), plus great featurettes on the genesis of the series, the making of the pilot, never-before-seen "Lost" flashbacks and "Fire & Water: Anatomy of an Episode" that follows one show from conception to completion.

Very cool. Still, not for my dad.

Vampires. Now, there's something dad might get into. Just in time for Father's Day is the four-disc DVD set "The Hunger: The Complete First Season."

Directors Ridley and Tony Scott are responsible for this series (which aired 1997-99 on Showtime) based on the 1983 vampire film of the same name starring David Bowie, Catherine Deneuve and Susan Sarandon.

All 22 episodes of the series are included here, introduced by host Terence Stamp. Among the familiar stars you'll see in episodes are Daniel "James Bond" Craig, Sally Kirkland, Bruce "X-Men" Davison and Balthazar Getty (of "Brothers and Sisters").

TV Impact

8 p.m. Sunday and June 28, ABC

ABC is asking critics not to reveal major plot points of this disaster mini-series. The meteor-o-death story has been told a thousand times, so there isn't much original here. I feel bad for the actors stuck in this clunker, including David James Elliott ("JAG"), Natasha Henstridge ("Eli Stone") and poor James Cromwell—yes, the Oscar nominee—as a grumpy grandpa who drives a flying car. I'd tell you why, but that might be giving up the lone original plot point.

DVD/BLU-RAY Friday the 13th

A group of hot friends stumbles into Camp Crystal Lake, where 29 years ago a boy (Jason) drowned, which prompted his mother to kill the counselors, which prompted a sole survivor to decapitate her, which prompted Jason to return from the dead to continue the vengeful spree, which prompted an endless movie franchise. The movie has a couple of half-laughs, zero scares and only one moment of artistically inventive slaughter. THE WASHINGTON POST

Chewing the fat: Popcorn edition

The Seattle Times

In her new book, "Fat: An Appreciation of a Misunderstood Ingredient, with Recipes," Jennifer McLagan effectively makes the case that fat is not only essential to good cooking but to good health. In four sections covering butter, pork fat, poultry fat, and beef and lamb fats, she offers a number of recipes to help us see the light.

Spicy Buttered Popcorn

Makes 8 cups

This caramel corn recipe uses way more butter than most versions. Pureed chipotle peppers add just the right punch.

- » 8 cups popped corn
- » 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- » ½ cup butter
- » 2 tablespoons corn syrup
- » ½ teaspoon fine sea salt
- » 3 tablespoons pureed chipotle peppers in adobo sauce
- » ½ teaspoon baking soda

—Adapted from "Fat" by Jennifer McLagan

» Preheat the oven to 250 degrees and line a rimmed baking sheet with baker's parchment. Spread the popcorn on the lined baking sheet.

» Combine the brown sugar, butter, corn syrup and sea salt and stir the mixture over medium heat until the butter and sugar melt and the mixture comes to a boil. Stop stirring and allow the mixture to boil until it reaches 250 degrees on a kitchen thermometer. Take the pan off the heat and stir in the chipotle pepper puree and the baking soda.

» Pour the mixture over the popcorn and stir with a heatproof silicone spatula until the popcorn is evenly coated. Bake the popcorn for 35 minutes, stirring two or three times. Cool to room temperature before serving. Store any leftovers in an airtight container.

YEAR ONE

After being banished from their village, early humans (Jack Black, Michael Cera) with poor hunter-gatherer skills and a surprisingly developed grasp of irony wander around in hopes of reuniting with their unrequited loves. Zed (Black) and Oh's (Cera) escapades involve run-ins with Cain and Abel (David Cross, Paul Rudd), Abraham and Isaac (Hank Azaria, Christopher Mintz-Plasse) and a High Priest (Oliver Platt) who just wants a little oil rubbed on his extremely hairy chest. Hey, who doesn't?

The buzz: The summer of 2009 is still waiting for a great comedy ("Up" is funny, but humor isn't its biggest achievement). At the very least, with co-writer/director Harold Ramis ("Analyze This") and a couple "Office" writers at the helm "Year

One" shouldn't wheeze like "Land of the Lost." Probably.

The verdict: Forget straddling the fence between laughs and groans. "Year One" is impaled by the fence, Ping-Ponging between clever, dialogue-driven bits and awful physical comedy. Points for the playful attitude toward history—Zed salutes Oh's ingenious idea to drink water out of a gourd, not his hands—are then docked by the childish fringe characters. (Why does Azaria voice Abraham like a pirate?)

Black once again does nothing to tweak his manic performance for a role, and Cera does his same ol' thing, but he's not yesterday's news yet. Hilarious movies have liftoff; "Year One" feels like a holding pattern.

HAROLD HOLZER

LIBRARY

The Chicago Public Library continues its celebration of the Lincoln Bicentennial with world-renowned Lincoln authority and historian, Harold Holzer, who will offer a unique, authoritative and engaging look at the impact Abraham Lincoln has had on our country's history and future. The free program will be held on Tuesday, June 16 at 6:00 p.m., in the Cindy Pritzker Auditorium, Lower Level, at the Harold Washington Library Center, 400 S. State St. Mr. Holzer serves as the United States co-chairman of the Lincoln Bicentennial Commission and is editor of the recently published The Lincoln Anthology. He has authored, co-authored and edited more than 33 books including Lincoln as I Knew Him, Lincoln President-Elect, Lincoln in the Times, and In Lincoln's Hand. For more information call the Chicago Public Library at 312-747-4050. This program is part of the Chicago Public Library's Land of Lincoln Readers: Summer Reads for Adults.

If you like pina coladas

The Washington Post

This light, frothy version is an alternative to the heavy, super-sweet pina coladas you find at most bars. To make the pineapple puree, just run fresh pineapple slices through a blender, juicer or food processor.

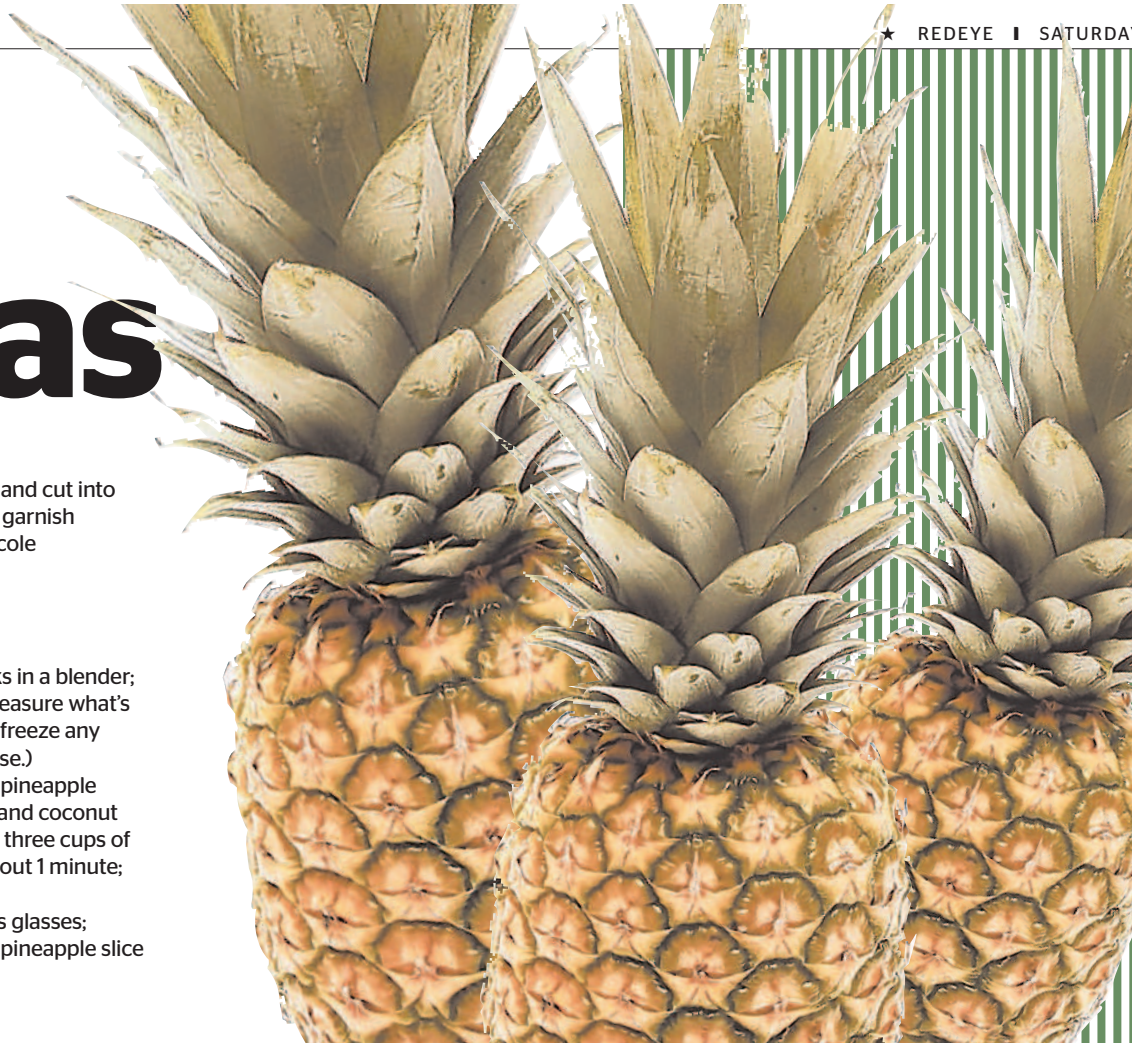

Pina colada means “strained pineapple,” but this version is “sin colar” (unstrained), which is easier and helps keep the drink from separating too quickly. Make sure to use coconut water, not coconut milk or cream of coconut mix. White rum agricole gives the drink a fresher taste. Serves four.

INGREDIENTS

- » 1 pineapple, peeled, cored and cut into chunks, plus small slices for garnish
- » 4 ounces white rum agricole
- » 4 ounces coconut water
- » 3 to 4 cups ice

DIRECTIONS

- » Place the pineapple chunks in a blender; puree to yield 12 ounces. (Measure what's needed for this recipe, then freeze any leftover puree for another use.)
- » Combine the 12 ounces of pineapple puree, white rum agricole and coconut water in a blender, then add three cups of the ice. Blend on high for about 1 minute; add ice as needed.
- » Pour into individual Collins glasses; garnish each portion with a pineapple slice and a straw.

WHAT'S IN STORE

Piazza Sempione

34 E. Oak St.; 312-280-1129,
www.piazasempione.com

The store recently opened on the Gold Coast, bringing more cachet to Oak Street's prestigious shopping strip. Located in the former Sugar Magnolia space, the new boutique marks the Milan-based brand's third stand-alone location in the U.S.

"We have a very loyal following in Chicago," says Oriana VanSomeren, the shop's general manager. "It just made sense to come here."

Popular in the 1990s for its pants line and known for well-made daytime basics, Piazza Sempione has been available to locals in limited styles at high-end department stores, such as Neiman Marcus, Barneys New York and Saks Fifth Avenue, for nearly two decades.

And while certain items will continue to sell at these stores, the Piazza Sempione boutique gives Chicagoans access to the brand's entire collection of tops, skirts, dresses, jackets, accessories and shoes.

Twitter town

D.C. lawmakers use tweets to get their message out

MCT

WASHINGTON Sen. Charles Grassley was darned annoyed when he saw that President Obama was having a good time in Paris.

So Grassley tweeted in protest: “Pres Obama while u sightseeing in Paris u said ‘time to delivr on healthcare’ When you are a “hammer” u think evrything is NAIL I’m no NAIL.”

Translation: “We were working when he was playing. I kind of resented that,” Grassley said in an interview.

Something else also was going on here: The 75-year-old, 28-year Senate veteran—one of the most powerful Republicans in Congress—was making himself heard through Twitter, the quick-message system often favored by folks half a century younger than Grassley.

Grassley is one of an estimated 30 senators and more than 100 members of the House of Representatives who use Twitter—quite a development in an institution where messengers still bow when they enter the Senate chamber and votes are taken by members often putting their thumbs up or down.

The irony, said Senate associate historian Don Ritchie, is that “members still use 19th-Century language in the chamber,” referring to one another in floor debate as the “distinguished gentlelady from Missouri” and so forth.

But there’s another tradition tugging at members: the need to keep the folks back home informed—and get re-elected—that’s long meant keeping up with the latest in communication trends. After all, the first message sent by telegraph (“What Hath God Wrought!”) was sent from the Capitol to Baltimore by Samuel F.B. Morse on May 24, 1844.

Grassley got miffed at Obama because the president said he wanted hard work on health care legislation, and Grassley’s staff was working while the president was relaxing in Paris.

Obama had gone to France to speak at Normandy for the 65th anniversary of D-Day on June 6. He also took his family sightseeing and in the evening had dinner with his wife at a Paris bistro where they dined on roast lamb and filet of beef with bearnaise sauce.

Sen. Charles Grassley (R-Iowa), a 28-year Senate veteran, uses Twitter to keep in touch with his constituents back home. “Town meetings are old-fashioned,” Grassley says. “I still do them, but I can reach a lot more people in different ways.” MCT

“I suppose I was being unfair,” Grassley said later in an interview, “but he was being unfair to me.”

He tweets, Grassley said, because he’s always tried to use the latest communication methods to reach his constituents. He’s got a cable TV show, recently did a constituent “telephone town meeting” that attracted an estimated 3,000 people, and has a blog, Facebook and MySpace profiles, and a Web page.

“Town meetings are old fashioned. I still do them, but I can reach a lot more people in different ways.”

The young and the restless

Los Angeles Times

Sleep isn’t just a chunk of time carved out to recharge for the following day. Increasingly, scientific evidence shows that life and sleep are woven together like 800-thread-count sheets. How people fare during their waking hours has a lot to do with how they sleep—and vice versa.

Income, employment status, relationship satisfaction and hobbies all affect sleep, according to research presented last week in Seattle at the annual meeting of the Associated Professional Sleep Societies. And sleep affects health, relationships and decisionmaking.

“Sleep is related to everything,” said Michael Grandner, a fellow at the Center for Sleep and Respiratory Neurobiology at the University of Pennsylvania.

Some news from the meeting:

» Who can’t sleep? In one presentation, Grandner reviewed responses from 159,856 people who participated in a government survey—one of the largest to gather data on sleep difficulties. Overall, 1 in 5 people reported problems with sleep on seven of the 14 nights before the survey. Grandner found little difference among racial and ethnic groups, except for people of Asian ethnicity, who had far fewer problems.

» But people in lower socioeconomic levels, especially women, reported more problems. So did divorced and separated people, especially divorced and separated men.

» And men who described themselves as homemakers reported sleep problems on par with people who were unemployed (who had high rates of problems).

» Perhaps most surprising, the worst sleep seems to occur in men and women ages 18 to 24. “The story with age is fascinating,” Grandner said. “Usually, the common knowledge is that as you get older you have more sleep problems. We found pretty much the opposite.”

RedEye checks in on All-Star voting to see what's what

By Ryan Smith

Fans don't always make the right choices when it comes to picking a winner—just ask “American Idol” runner-up Adam Lambert. But with the end of All-Star voting around the corner in July, we wondered if baseball's faithful are making the right choices when it comes to picking worthy players for this year's big game. So who's getting snubbed and who is rightfully being labeled a flub? RedEye takes a look at two hometown sluggers and a wild card we just couldn't ignore. RYAN SMITH IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

AP FILE

Alfonso Soriano

OF, Cubs

All-Star status: Looking good

If the All-Star starters were selected after the first three weeks of the season, Soriano would be a shoo-in. But after a blazing hot start, the Cubs' polarizing left fielder is down to .229 and has more strikeouts than hits. Ouch.

Verdict: All-Flub

TRIBUNE

Jermaine Dye

OF, White Sox

All-Star status: Long shot

The White Sox offense has been noodle limp in '09, but don't blame Dye, who is hitting well despite losing slugger Carlos Quentin as protection. Still, Dye has fewer votes than someone in Texas named David Murphy. Who?

Verdict: All-Snub

AP FILE

Manny Ramirez

OF, Dodgers

All-Star status: On the edge

Maybe Ramirez was trying to enhance his performance and not get pregnant by allegedly taking a women's fertility drug. But still, how do you keep one of the best hitters of all time out of the All-Star game? Self-righteous sports columnists, hush!

Verdict: All-Snub

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redeyechicago.com/answers.

SCRABBLE

Make a 2- to 7-letter word from the letters in each row. Add points of each word, using scoring directions at right. Finally, 7-letter words get a 50-point bonus. "Blanks" used as any letter have no point value. All the words are in the Official Scrabble Players Dictionary, 3rd Edition. # Indecent 'Proposal'

Unless you've been living under a rock for the last few weeks, you've probably heard about Sandra Bullock's nude scene in "The Proposal," which opened Friday.

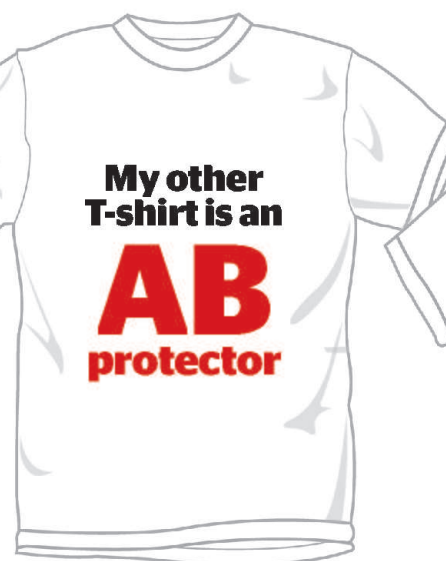

It was her first one. It was kind of awkward. She thinks more people will be checking out co-star Ryan Reynolds. And so on, and so on.

But you have to admit, it's still pretty interesting. In honor of being able to see the skin scene—finally, instead of just hearing about it—in theaters this weekend, RedEye offers up suggestions for funny T-shirts the on-screen couple could have used to cover up.

PERFECT FOR:
Sandra Bullock, Tom Cruise

PERFECT FOR:
Sandra Bullock, Ryan Reynolds

PERFECT FOR: Ryan Reynolds,
David Beckham, Hugh Jackman

PERFECT FOR: Sandra Bullock, Beyonce, Demi Moore

Oh baby

Is she or isn't she? Hard to say at this point.

But the rumor mill still was abuzz Friday following reports from People and Us Weekly that supermodel Giselle Bundchen is preggers.

Reps for Bundchen wouldn't comment to People, and there was no word as of midday from her husband, New England Patriots quarterback Tom Brady.

The hubbub started after Bundchen was snapped this week at Sao Paulo Fashion Week in Brazil wearing what some people have called bump-covering couture.

Stay tuned.

THE DIGIT

$3,000 to $5,000

Amount the Recording Industry Association of America says it once offered to settle with Jammie Thomas-Rasset, the Minnesota woman who was ordered Thursday to pay $1.92 million to recording companies for violating copyrights with file sharing, The Associated Press reports.

'Grey's' update

T.R. Knight (right) says his "Grey's" exit was no walk in the park. "Leaving 'Grey's Anatomy' was not an easy decision for me to make," Knight said in a statement Friday, confirming reports from earlier this week that his character, George O'Malley, would not be returning next season. Katherine Heigl, meanwhile, is reportedly staying on, according to The Hollywood Reporter.

O, no she didn't!

Lisa Lampanelli prefers Jerry Springer over Oprah Winfrey. "I love him. He's the real talk show host in that town," the Queen of Mean told RedEye. "I think it should be Jerry Springer Day every day. You know what? Every one of my relatives has appeared on that show and I like it. He keeps us employed." Lampanelli will perform her X-rated stand-up Saturday at the Chicago Theatre.

Casting call

Josie Bissett (right) is returning to Melrose Place as a guest star, according to people.com, citing a source. She starred on the original show as Jane Mancini. She now joins her old castmates Laura Leighton and Thomas Calabro when the new show airs on the CW network in the fall, according to the mag.

What time is it? Pitchfork time!

Get out your day (and night) planners, hipsters. Organizers on Friday announced the schedules for all three stages of the July 17-19 show at Union Park. They also said Sunday tickets are completely sold out—along with two- and three-day passes—but Friday and Saturday tickets still were available as of Friday afternoon.

Sex gossip

TMZ is reporting a sex tape of "Gossip Girl" star Leighton Meester (left) is being shopped around. On Friday, porn site celebhotline.com posted stills it said were from the alleged video, and its spokesman told tmz.com: "We've seen the tape, and we're hoping to close the deal."
